CLIMATE CHANGE & EMERGING RISKS

PII brings together internationally renowned speakers and an opportunity to taste Pakistan's hospitality

On behalf of the organizing committee we welcome you to the International Conference on "Climate Change & Emerging Risks" being held from April 9~11, 2017 in Karachi, Pakistan.

Climate change and its implications is being addressed at various global forums as the effects are already being felt by populations and businesses around the globe. Global warming is a reality which cannot be ignored. Severe drought, floods, melting glaciers, scarcity of water, changing patterns in agriculture, rising temperatures etc., are a concern for all and especially for the emerging markets / developing countries.

In addition, with the fast changing world of technology, insurance industry will have to deal with the resultant emerging risks such as cyber-crime, driverless cars, etc.

Pakistan Insurance Institute believes that this subject needs to be addressed with all stakeholders and this conference aims to bring together renowned foreign and local speakers/moderators from Alfalah Insurance, Aon Benfield, Arig, Ceylinco, CHUBB, Crescent Global, Hannover Re, Jubilee General, Lockton, Munich Re, SCOR, State Life Insurance Corporation, Swiss Re, TPL Direct and Trust Re. It is an ideal opportunity for delegates from insurance companies, broker firms, banks, microfinance institutions, national corporations and loss adjusters to discuss and find ways and means to understand the impact of climate change and emerging risks.

The organizing committee has planned a gala dinner featuring cultural taste followed by a lively entertainment programme. Golf and shopping trips are also planned for foreign delegates who prefer outdoor activities.

We look forward to hosting you and are committed to make your stay in Karachi comfortable and memorable.

CPEC

“One Belt
One Road”

Regional connectivity and development of the required infrastructure through cooperative efforts of the participating countries for shared economic prosperity is a visionary concept and recipe for addressing issues related to poverty alleviation and development, as well as ensuring peace through economic interdependence.

The Chinese leadership deserves credit for pioneering this movement through its ‘One Belt One Road’ initiative, which will potentially benefit 26 countries. The highly ambitious plan calls for new state-directed investments in roads, railways, pipelines, ports, and information networks to deepen economic integration and connectivity across Asia and into Africa and Europe. The CPEC being the pivot of the initiative has generated a lot of interest and acceptability among the countries of South Asia and Central Asia, and even some of the European countries have shown their willingness to join it. Pakistan’s decision to be part of this initiative of regional connectivity and development, has undoubtedly shown a high degree of pragmatism and foresight given the permeating economic situation in the country, stemming from resource constraint and the fast changing geo-political realities. Pakistan due to its geo-strategic location is a key participant in making the venture economically viable and financially uplifting a substantial segment of humanity. Pakistan surely will also be one of its major beneficiaries, becoming a hub of economic activity for both regions. CPEC, therefore, is a harbinger of regional connectivity and positive change.

CPEC is intended to promote connectivity across Pakistan with a network of highways, railways, and pipelines accompanied by energy, industrial, and other infrastructure development projects to address critical energy shortages needed to boost Pakistan’s economic growth. Eventually, CPEC will also facilitate trade along an overland route that connects China to the Indian Ocean, linking the Chinese city of Kashgar to the Pakistani port of Gwadar.

This flag ship project has promised a Foreign Direct Investment (FDI) of US$ 52 billion to be invested during the next decade and has provided hopes to transform Pakistan’s economy and help bridge its energy shortfall, with the lion share of investment roughly US$ 35 billion is expected to go to energy projects, including coal, solar, hydroelectric, liquefied natural gas, and power transmission. If all goes according to plan, these projects will add around 17,000 megawatts into the national grid by the end of this mega economic bonanza doubling Pakistan’s installed capacity.

Two routes (Eastern and Western) with a combined length of 3,218 kilometre will connect Kashgar in China’s western Xinjiang region to the port of Gwadar. Currently, nearly 80 per cent of China’s oil is transported by ship from the Strait of Malacca to Shanghai, a distance of more than 13,000 km, with the journey taking between two to three months. But once Gwadar begins operating, the distance would be reduced to less than 2,000 km.

Prospective businesses facilitated by the China-Pakistan Economic Corridor can be categorized as mechanized farming, electricity-operated cottage industry, high-capacity industrial units, factory ~ market road transportation and distribution services, rail-supported bulk transit of goods, construction services for energy, road, and rail projects, dry ports along the CPEC routes, storage facilities for transit goods. Rest houses across the CPEC route and Gwadar international airport, consultancy and brokerage services for Chinese and Pakistani investors, human resource and recruitment agencies linked to the Pak-China technical and vocational Institutes in Gwadar.

The above mentioned business opportunities are not exhaustive and the Corridor has room for all scales, sizes, and forms of investments. It is being termed as a game changer that would not only strengthen the overall economic outlook of Pakistan and China, but also facilitate the strengthening of the business communities of the two countries at a micro-level.
